Gandhi's Contribution to Indian Education Group Discussion

Report

On September 25, 2023, the department of history and political science organized an event to discuss Mahatma Gandhi's significant contributions to Indian education, with a focus on his educational philosophies and methods. The event began with a comprehensive lecture by Dr. Khalid Bashir, the head of the history department, who provided a detailed analysis of Gandhi's life, achievements, and his profound influence on Indian society, particularly through his educational ideas.

Following Dr. Bashir's lecture, Dr. Hilal Ahmad Wani, an assistant professor of political science, shared his insights into Gandhi's educational concepts and methods. Dr. Wani elaborated on the close connection between Gandhi's ideology and his approaches to education.

Subsequently, participants, including students and other attendees in the conference hall, engaged in group discussions. They were divided into four groups to explore Gandhi's remarkable contributions to Indian education and to discuss various perspectives on how education can contribute to social upliftment. Throughout the discussion, Dr. Khalid Bashir provided valuable guidance and moderation to ensure a focused and productive exploration of Gandhi's educational philosophy and its impact on society.

The group discussion on 'Gandhi's Contribution to Indian Education' offered an excellent platform for a thoughtful examination of Mahatma Gandhi's enduring influence on education and society. The event underscored Gandhi's lasting impact on India's educational landscape and emphasized the importance of incorporating his educational philosophy into contemporary educational practices.

The program concluded with a vote of thanks from Dr. Mohammad Ashraf Khawajha, a lecturer in the history department, who expressed gratitude to all participants, speakers, and attendees for their active involvement, which greatly contributed to the success and intellectual richness of the event.
